The Auckland Council runs a fun, highly interactive website designed to encourage children to become proactive in protecting and enhancing the environment.

The site is packed full of games, activity sheets, animations, fun downloads, and more. By completing various environmental missions on the site children score points and win on-line prizes. The site features instant messaging and podcasting and partners with other councils around the country to broaden its reach.

Currently the site has 34,000 members on its books, and attracts boys and girls in equal numbers. It has won multiple awards and commendations.

What others have said about the site:

"I really love saving the earth, I just joined today and I'm very excited!"

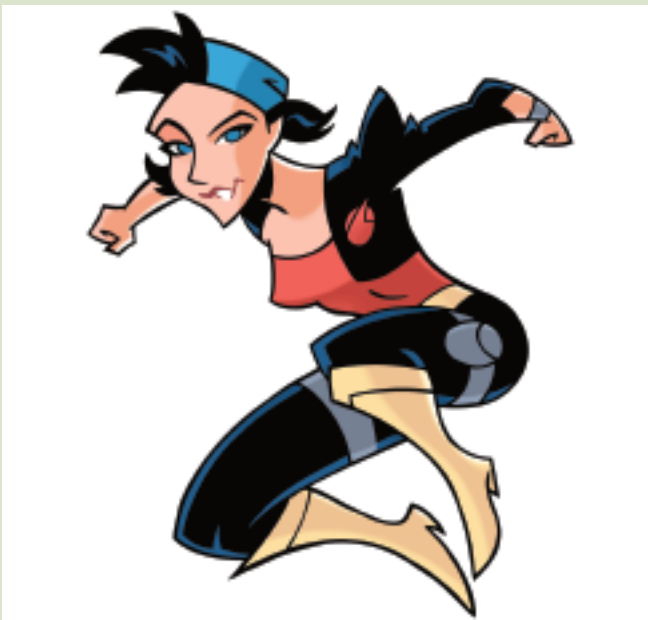

Jamie-Lee, age 10

"This site is AWESOME! I LOVE BEING AN AGENT!!"

Harley, age 9

"This is the most kid-friendly website I've ever been on. It's also the coolest and the funniest!"

Bernadette, age 9

Environmental Funding

Councils throughout the Auckland region have historically operated a range of contestable funding schemes providing support to community-led environmental and heritage projects.

The Auckland Council will continue to offer a range of contestable funding schemes to support environmental and heritage projects throughout the Auckland region. Any decisions on the availability and administration of funding from 1 July 2011 will be communicated when available through the Auckland Council website (www.aucklandcouncil.govt.nz) and community networks.
